Potential Student Profile / Criteria for Admission:

What the award is about and who the programme is aimed at:

The programme is aimed at students who wish to acquire an insider's knowledge of the law, and who wish to develop high-level transferable and applied skill-sets in communication, analysis and research, such that they graduate "employment ready", whether for careers in the law or other graduate careers.

The LLB is a three-year full-time, or five-year part-time, bachelor degree programme. It has been designed to meet the requirements of the SRA and BSB for recognition as a Qualifying Law Degree for the purposes of completion of those bodies' Academic Stage of Training.

For students who wish to focus on the law relating to business and commerce, the LLB Business Law programme provides the opportunity to study a range of areas relevant to the operation and governance of commercial entities.

Why students should choose this award:

The degree will provide students with a strong foundation of legal knowledge and an understanding of the broader social, economic and political contexts within which the law operates and is developed. The programme consists of a blend of professional and academic elements to develop graduates with a professional, graduate skill-set, and understanding of the law.

There is a particular focus on transferable and applied skills; professionalism: critical thinking and independent working, providing students with a broad learning base to hit the ground running when entering the workforce after graduation. Students will be tutored in a current, relevant curriculum, which reflects the needs of both the legal services industry and other graduate employers, and of the modern graduate, boosting students' employability and skills base.

For students intending to become solicitors or barristers, the award, as a Qualifying Law Degree exempts graduates from the requirement to undertake a Graduate Diploma in Law before commencing the Legal Practice Course or the Bar Professional Training Course (the Vocational Stage of Education).

Opportunities available for students after completion of the award:

Graduates from the programme have the knowledge and skills to undertake the Vocational Stage of Education for later qualification as a solicitor or barrister, or to undertake post-graduate academic legal study.

Law graduates, with high level of competency in communication and analysis (as well as knowledge of the law) are attractive to a range of graduate employers, including those offering careers in law enforcement; regulatory and compliance work; the justice system; local and national government; and a wide-range of careers in business and commerce.

For LLB (Hons) Law & LLB (Hons) Business Law (3 years)

Expected knowledge and skills that the entrant will have on entry to the programme:

Admission regulations are in accordance with those prescribed by University Regulations. A typical entrant would be expected to have GCSE English and Mathematics at Grade C or above and a UCAS Tariff score of at least 260 (or a lower score with other evidence of ability and commitment). This score can be achieved from a minimum of two 4-unit GCE A-levels or equivalent. Entrants should have basic IT skills, but no previous knowledge or qualification relating to law is required. Applications are encouraged from those with the potential to succeed who have non-traditional educational backgrounds, but who demonstrate through their previous experience the desire and potential to succeed in legal study. Applicants whose first language is not English will be expected to have an overall IELTS band score of 6.0 (with 5.5 in each element of Listening, Reading, Writing and Speaking).

For LLB (Hons) Law with Foundation Year & LLB (Hons) Business Law with Foundation Year (4 years)

Applicants who do not meet the minimum requirements for the 3-year programme, or those who do not feel fully prepared for a Level 4 course, will be considered for the 4-year programme including a Foundation Year.

Please see the University's General Entry Requirement webpages for requirements for entry at this level.

SECTION B: PROGRAMME AIMS, OUTCOMES, LEARNING, TEACHING AND ASSESSMENT METHODS

Programme Aims

The main educational aims of the programme are to:

- Equip students with the skills, competencies and knowledge-base to enable them to undertake post-graduate study;
- Equip students with the skills, competencies and knowledge-base to enable them to commence graduate careers in the legal profession, in business, and in areas such as accountancy, financial regulation, insurance, government service, and the criminal justice system
- Produce employment-ready graduates with professional and ethical approaches to their chosen career or study.
- Produce graduates with the skills, knowledge and values necessary for life-long personal development.

Programme Learning Outcomes

A. Knowledge and Understanding

On successful completion of the programme a graduate will be able to:

1. Demonstrate an understanding of the concepts, values, rules, procedures, institutions and personnel of the English & Welsh and European Union legal systems.
2. Demonstrate knowledge and understanding of a range of substantive areas of law, including some in depth.
3. Demonstrate an understanding of legal ethics and the concepts which underpin them.
4. Demonstrate an understanding of social, commercial and political contexts within which the law operates.

B. Intellectual/Cognitive Skills

On successful completion of the programme a graduate will be able to:

1. Apply the law to factual situations to produce arguable conclusions as to possible outcomes.
2. Identify issues for research and undertake effective research using electronic and paper sources, including in areas of law not previously studied.
3. Identify and engage with doctrinal and policy considerations in relation to legal topics.
4. Consider and assess a range of arguments to produce a critical analysis of laws.

C. Practical Skills

On successful completion of the programme a graduate will be able to:

1. Produce documents using software appropriate to the requirements of a particular task or audience.
2. Understand the concept of ethics and the value and application of ethical considerations in academic and professional contexts.
3. Understand what is meant by professionalism and apply their understanding in an academic and employment context.
4. Work to deadline, effectively planning and managing workload.

D. Key/Transferable Skills

On successful completion of the programme a graduate will be able to:

1. Communicate effectively and persuasively in the English language, in writing and using speech.
2. Work effectively as a part of a group or team.
3. Reflect on his or her own learning, and recognise areas for development.
4. Recognise and undertake practical and developmental steps in planning for his or her future.

Learning, Teaching and Assessment Methods to achieve the Programme Learning Outcomes

Teaching and Learning Strategies

The course is underpinned by classroom-based teaching of current theory, concepts and research, delivered through a blend of lectures, interactive seminars and workshops, small-group activities and debates and supported at every stage by material on the virtual learning environment.

Lectures are used to provide frameworks within which students develop their learning. They are primarily lecturer-led but interactive in style and designed to engage students in the understanding of the subject. Dependent upon level and content, they may include student-based activity and will always provide opportunity for students to raise questions.

The frameworks delivered within the lecture sessions include those of method, concept, rule, policy, and (legal) cultural norms. Students are provided with study guides and other written materials to support their learning: these will include lecture outlines and references as well as seminar/workshop materials, and the virtual learning environment will be used to support the teaching, learning and assessment strategy.

Seminars and workshops are student centred. Seminars provide a context for the examination and use of knowledge gained in plenary sessions and in private study. They are based upon case-study based problems, questions and research activities that are set out in study materials.

Workshops provide an opportunity for skills development and application and will typically involve practical tasks/skills application and problem solving being carried out in class or in buzz-groups.

Students are expected to read, research, and prepare answers for the seminar or workshop questions. Information and ideas are exchanged and discussed. Difficulties and uncertainties are addressed. Students develop legal, academic and transferable skills with guidance from tutors.

Skills in oral and written technique, research and critical analysis are developed progressively throughout the levels. The Professional Skills modules provide particular focus of the development of those skills, which are assessed in these modules and, through the varied diet of assessment in other modules.

Independent learning is developed progressively through the programme by means of seminar research, and coursework preparation, with students at lower levels being given greater guidance on sources and indicative reading. The second-year Professional Skills module prepares students to demonstrate their ability in undertaking independent research in the third-year Dissertation and Research Project modules.

Beyond the skills modules, the core of the programme comprises study of the Foundation Modules of Criminal Law, Contract Law, European Union Law, Law of Tort, Constitutional Law, Equity & Trusts, and Property Law, as required by the professional bodies.

Differentiation is permitted by the range of option modules at Levels 5 and 6, which are designed to permit students to undertake study in a range of legal disciplines, or to specialise in particular areas of law.

In level 5, students are required to undertake one of three option modules in the first semester (Criminal Justice; Media Law 1; Law of Business Organisations) with a range of complementary options available in the second semester.

In level 6 students will be given the opportunity to undertake further study in the area of their first semester second year options (Evidence; Media Law 2; Commercial Law). Again, a range of complementary option is available in the second semester (and in the first, for those students undertaking the Research Project instead of the Dissertation).

Professionalism and ethics form a theme throughout the programme, introduced primarily in the Skills modules, but inculcated in other modules with clear expectations that students behave appropriately and contribute to the achievement of teaching aims in class. Particular focus for the demonstration of these skills arises in a variety of assessed elements, including team- or group-based assessments; oral presentations; the legal advice exhibition and the court day.

During the Foundation Year, students will be exposed to a variety of summative and formative assessments whilst developing the academic skills to be a successful student at university; course content and Learning Outcomes strongly relate to students developing their knowledge and understanding of the subjects being studied and assessed.

Assessment Strategies

Specific assessment methods are determined at modular level, but are designed to reflect the programme aims and learning outcomes, to equip students with relevant knowledge and experience; academic and cognitive, and critical and transferrable skills. To this end there is a varied diet of assessment at all three levels designed to mirror 'real world' legal issues, problems and situations, as well as providing students with the opportunity to demonstrate the skills they have acquired.

Seminars provide one of the contexts in which student achievement can be demonstrated: this achievement is formally assessed in some modules at Levels 5 and Level 6 by the Seminar Contribution and Participation assessment. The form of SCAP will be by way of ongoing assessment of students' preparation for and contribution to seminars throughout the academic cycle.

Examinations permit students to demonstrate achievement of a range of Learning Outcomes in some law modules. Traditional "unseen" end-of-year exams are limited to the Foundation Modules (Criminal Law, Contract Law, Law of Tort, Constitutional Law, Equity & Trusts, and Land Law). Other law modules will be assessed in part by time limited "take-home" assessment: a case-study will be released to students via the virtual learning environment with limited time to undertake the required task and submit a written report (again, via the virtual learning environment. Modules may also be assessed in part by traditional case-study or essay based coursework questions, provided to students considerably in advance of the submission deadline.

All students will be required to demonstrate the skills of critical analysis and independent study required to achieve success in a dissertation or its equivalent (Research Project)

Additionally some modules contain specific forms of assessment applicable only to that module: for instance, the Court Day reflective account; the legal advice session; assessment by submission of a portfolio of work; viva examinations; and preparation of CVs and career plans.

Work-Based / Placement Learning

Students with appropriate placement, employment or voluntary roles may be permitted to undertake LC610 Work Based Learning.

SECTION D: CONTACT HOURS

Note: Hours are worked on the basis of full-time study. 1 Academic Credit is equated to 10 notional learning hours. A full-time undergraduate student will normally study 120 credits in an academic year which is therefore equated to 1200 notional hours. A full time postgraduate student will normally study 180 credits in an academic year which equates to 1800 hours. Module Descriptors provide detailed breakdowns of the categories given below.

Table 4: Breakdown of Contact Hours

Year of course	Scheduled Learning and Teaching Activities	Guided Independent Study	Placement / Study Abroad	Total
Year One	324	876		1200
Year Two	312	888		1200
Year Three	254	946		1200
Total	890	2710		3600

Students who study this programme with a Foundation Year will complete an additional 1200 hours during that year.

SECTION E: ASSESSMENT REGULATIONS

This programme conforms to the approved University procedures as detailed on the University website with the following exceptions:

The following modules may not be condoned: LW699, LW698.

The recognition of any award as a Qualifying Law Degree by the SRA or BSB is dependent on students' achievement of the requirement of those bodies' regulations for the Academic Stage of Training.

This programme will be covered by the following University regulations: Academic Assessment Regulations

Ethics

The following ethics sub-committee will be responsible for ensuring good research practice and student awareness of ethical concerns and risks.
