Programme Committees can operate actually or virtually, or use a combination of both methods, depending on the mode of delivery and/or the study pattern of the programme concerned. Virtual meetings may be structured in any way that meets the needs of the particular student body.

The agenda and subsequent discussion should be structured around the following areas of the student learning experience (these are based on the NSS questions):

- Teaching on the Course, including how good staff are at explaining things, whether they have made the subject interesting, whether the course is intellectually stimulating, and if it has challenged students to achieve their best work
- Learning Opportunities, including whether the course is providing opportunities to explore ideas in depth, whether there are opportunities to bring information and ideas together from different topics, and whether the course is providing opportunities to apply what has been learned
- Assessment and Feedback, including criteria for marking, the fairness of the marking and assessment process, whether feedback has been timely (i.e. within the three-week turnaround), and whether comments on work were helpful
- Academic Support, including how easy it was to contact staff when necessary, whether sufficient advice and guidance on the course has been provided, and whether good advice was available when needed to inform study choices
- Organisation and Management, including whether the course is well-organised and running smoothly, any timetabling issues, and whether changes in the course or teaching have been communicated effectively
- Learning Resources, including the extent to which both library resources and IT resources and facilities have supported learning, and whether course-specific resources have been accessible when needed
- Learning Community, including how students have been made to feel part of a community of staff and students, and the opportunities they have had to work with other students
- Student Voice, including whether the opportunities to provide feedback are right, how staff value students' views, and how feedback has been acted on

Ahead of the meeting, student representatives are expected to gather input from their fellow cohort(s) of students on issues to be raised, including both good practice examples as well as issues of concern. If student representatives are unable to attend the meeting, they should attempt to nominate a replacement.

Short Action Notes (rather than minutes) will be used to document the meeting and capture issues under the headings above. These will be circulated to members and will record the detail of the action required (including a brief context where necessary), the timescale for completion, as well as the member of the committee responsible for pursuing the action. An update on actions should be provided prior to the next meeting to close the feedback loop. Action notes should also include details of issues that were resolved during the meeting so that these can be referred back to if necessary.
